1 Introduction 9

1.1 Introduction to Graphical Learning Strategies 9

1.2 Problems with Graphical Learning Strategies 10

1.3 MapTutor: The Proposed Solution 11

1.4 Overview of this Book 14

2 Graphical Learning Strategies 17

2.1 Introduction 17

2.2 Classification of Mapping Systems 17

2.3 Examples of Graphical Strategies 18

2.3.1 Networking 19

2.3.2 Mapping 21

2.3.3 Schematisation 22

2.3.4 Knowledge Mapping 24

2.3.5 Concept Mapping 26

2.3.6 Pattern Notes 29

2.4 Canonical Link Systems 31

2.5 How to Construct a Graphical Representation of Text 34

2.6 Graphical Learning Strategies Training 35

2.6.1 Building-Block Approach 35

2.6.2 Modelling Approaches 36

2.6.3 Link-Guided Approach 36

2.6.4 Novak & Gowing's Differential Approaches for Training Concept Mapping 37

2.6.5 Comments on Training Approaches: Suitability for a Computer Implementation 38

2.7 Sherlock: A Computational Approach 39

2.8 Conclusion and Summary of Graphical Learning Strategies 46

3 A Computational Approach for Teaching a Graphical Learning Strategy 49

3.1 Introduction 49

3.2 A Computational Learning Approach 49

3.2.1 Pre-Teaching 50

3.2.2 Practice and Tutoring 50

3.2.3 Post-task Feedback 53

3.2.4 MapTutor's Architecture 54

3.3 Text Analysis 55

3.4 Analysis of Concepts 57

3.5 Concept Learnability 59

3.6 MapTutor Links 64

3.7 Knowledge Representation 65

3.7.1 Representation of Concepts 65

3.7.2 Representation of Links 66

3.7.3 Representation of Relationships 68

3.8 The Importance and the Role of the Expert's Knowledge 70

3.9 The Influence of the Learner's Prior Knowledge 72

3.10 Conclusion 74

4 A Computational Approach for Teaching a Graphical Learning Strategy 77

4.1 Introduction 77

4.2 Simplifying Assumptions 77

4.3 Modelling the Learner's Performance 78

4.4 Determining the Link between Two Concepts 79

4.5 Establishing the Cause of a Wrong Link 81

4.6 Basic Diagnostic Procedures 86
4.6.1 Basic Diagnostic I: Concept Misunderstanding 87
4.6.2 Basic Diagnostic II: Misunderstanding the Relationship 88
4.6.3 Basic Diagnostic III: Misunderstanding Semantics of Links 89
4.7 Asking the Learner 89
4.8 Updating the Performance Model 91
4.9 Providing Feedback 92
4.9.1 Basic Teaching Procedures 93
4.9.2 Auxiliary Teaching Procedures 99
4.10 Conclusion 103
5 MapTutor: Implementation and Trace 105
5.1 Introduction 105
5.2 Design Considerations 105
5.3 MapTutor's Interface 106
5.3.1 The Text Pane 111
5.3.2 The Links Pane 112
5.3.3 The Links Definitions Pane 112
5.3.4 The Map Pane 112
5.3.5 The Tools Pane 115
5.3.6 The Tools Definitions Pane 116
5.3.7 The Tutor Pane 116
5.3.8 Pull-Down Menus 116
5.4 Interpreting and Keeping Track of the Learner's Actions 118
5.4.1 Map Tasks Records 121
5.4.2 Pre-Evaluating the Learner's Move 122
5.4.3 Evaluating a Mapping Task 124
5.5 The Help and Tutorial Programs 125
5.6 Using MapTutor 129
5.7 Tutorial Interventions 131
5.8 End-of-Session Report 132

5.9 Entering the Knowledge 135
5.10 Implementation of MapTutor 135
5.11 Conclusion 137

6 Evaluating MapTutor 139
6.1 Introduction 139
6.2 Preliminary Evaluation 139
6.2.1 Data Collection 139
6.2.2 Quality of Measures 142
6.2.3 Method 143
6.2.4 Results 146
6.2.5 Discussion: Appraising MapTutor 147
6.3 Evaluating MapTutor as a Mapping Training Program 150
6.3.1 Purpose and Justification of Study 151
6.3.2 Background and Review of Literature 152
6.3.3 Methodology and Procedures 152
6.3.4 Pilot Study 158
6.3.5 Some Alternatives to the Proposed Study 159
6.4 Conclusion 160

7 Conclusions and Future Directions 163
7.1 Contributions to Knowledge 163
7.2 Limitations of the Research and Future Directions 170
7.2.1 Supporting Organisation 170
7.2.2 Turning MapTutor Less Obtrusive and More Friendly 171
7.2.3 Improving MapTutor Reasoning Capabilities 172
7.2.4 Definition of Rules of Interaction among Links 173
7.2.5 A Better Inverted Link Treatment 174
7.2.6 Authoring Interface 174
7.2.7 Full-Scale, Long-Term Experimental Work 175
7.3 Concluding Remarks 175
